Bosphorus 2008—Connecting Cereal Science and Industry Where the Continents Meet

HAMILTON KÖKSEL1 AND ARZU BASMAN2

ICC International Conference: Bosphorus 2008 was organized by the International Association for Cereal Science and Technology (ICC) and Hacettepe University (ICC’s national representation) and held on April 24—26, 2008, in Istanbul, Turkey. Bosphorus 2008 was planned to connect the East and West in Istanbul, right at the crossroad of different continents and countries. It was the first major scientific event jointly organized by ICC in Turkey and surrounding countries. The conference was endorsed by MoniQA, Healthgrain, AACC International, and Cereals & Europe (C&E).

Bosphorus 2008 had more than 300 participants from 30 countries, addressing researchers, manufacturers, policymakers, regulatory bodies, industries, SMEs, as well as students and professionals who would like to get up-to-date with modern technology and establish international collaborations. Areas of interest included food production, grain/crop breeding and growing, milling, baking, and food processing. The event was an excellent opportunity for networking and extending cooperation.

The focus of this international conference was the marketing and development of innovative cereal products meeting society’s and consumers’ needs in convenience, taste, nutrition, health, safety, and security. Topics included exploiting new raw materials and new technologies, producing functional foods in a legal framework of health claims, new ingredients, and elements for fortification. The total number of oral presentations was 70 (24 invited, 27 oral, and 19 short oral presentations), and more than 100 posters were available for viewing.

The Organizing Committee consisted of Roland E. Poms (ICC, Austria), Hamit Köksel (Hacettepe University, Turkey), Umran Uygun (Hacettepe University, Turkey), Arzu Basman (Hacettepe University, Turkey), and Anita Habershuber (ICC, Austria).
